Dear colleagues and friends,

At GeraNova Bruckmann, publishing is not only about creating beautiful books – it is about understanding how people live, move, dream, and create in a changing world. Our program reflects the questions and aspirations of our time: new ways of working, renewed curiosity for science and technology, sustainable mobility, and the desire for creativity and comfort in everyday life.

This season's highlights demonstrate how diverse these impulses can be.

With Workation Travel Guide, we respond to one of the most significant lifestyle shifts of our era: the merging of work and travel. Remote work has transformed not only offices, but entire ways of living. This guide presents destinations that combine reliable infrastructure with quality of life, natural beauty, and cultural authenticity.

On the Way to the Moon turns our gaze upward. As international space programs prepare for new lunar missions, humanity once again stands at the threshold of discovery. This richly illustrated volume retraces the milestones of space exploration while looking ahead to the next chapter of lunar ambition. Combining technological insight with historical perspective, it captures the pioneering spirit that continues to unite nations in the pursuit of knowledge beyond our planet.

Mobility on Earth is the focus of The Railway in the 21st Century. At a time when sustainability and climate-conscious transport are central global concerns, rail is experiencing a powerful renaissance. This book explores modern high-speed networks, digital innovations, and the strategic role of rail infrastructure in shaping a greener future.

With Crocheting Supercute Foods, we celebrate a different, yet equally meaningful movement: the return to handmade creativity. In a fast-paced digital world, crafting offers mindfulness, joy, and personal expression. This charming and accessible project book invites readers to create adorable crocheted food figures.

Together, these titles embody what GeraNova Bruckmann stands for today: curiosity about the future, respect for sustainable development, enthusiasm for innovation, and appreciation for creativity in everyday life.

I am excited to discuss these and many other books from our portfolio with you!

With warmest regards,
